State Law Report Card

Alabama

A protection order is a FREE court order that can protect you from an abusive dating partner. This order can prevent your current or ex-partner from:

- Threatening or abusing you
- Contacting or coming near you or your family
- Coming to your school, home or work
- Possessing a gun

The order may also require your current or ex-partner to:

- Move out of your home
- Agree to a custody and visitation schedule, if you have children
- Pay you child support or spousal support
- Pay your attorney's fees
- Do anything else the court finds is necessary for your protection

A protection order can be changed if things in your life change (for example, if you transfer to a new school or get a new job).

You can get a protection order against someone who:

- You are or were married to OR
- You have a child with OR
- You are related to by blood or marriage

The law does not allow you to get a protection order against someone you are or were dating.

The law requires you to show that your current or ex-partner:

- Threatened to, attempted to or actually physically abused you OR
- Sexually abused you OR
- Stalked or harassed you

Other types of abuse may also qualify you for a protection order.

If you are under 18 years old, an adult family/household member or an adult acting as your guardian must go to court with you to file for a protection order on your behalf. Alabama law does not say whether the court has to notify your parent/guardian if you receive a protection order.

This is the law in your state only. The law is different in every state.

What other laws do you need to know about?

Teens 14 and older can consent to birth control services.

All teens can consent to:

- Testing and treatment for sexually transmitted infections*
- Medical care during pregnancy
- Adoption
- Medical care for their child(ren)

*If you are a minor, a doctor may tell your parents.

If you are a minor, you must have your parent's consent to have an abortion.

What are schools doing about dating violence?

Alabama law does not include any information about dating violence in schools.

How can Alabama improve its response to teen dating violence?

- Allow people in dating relationships to file for protection orders.
- Allow all minors to file for protection orders without parental involvement.
- Allow courts to issue protection orders against minor abusers.
