

2010

State Law Report Card

Rhode Island

A protection order is a FREE court order that can protect you from an abusive dating partner. This order can prevent your current or ex-partner from:

- Threatening or abusing you
- Contacting or coming near you
- Coming to your home or work
- Possessing a gun

The order may also require your current or ex-partner to:

- Move out of your home
- Agree to a custody and visitation schedule, if you have children
- Pay you child support or spousal support
- Do anything else the court finds is necessary for your protection

A protection order can be changed if things in your life change (for example, if you transfer to a new school or get a new job).

You can get a protection order against someone who:

- You are/were dating or married to OR
- You have a child with OR
- You are related to by blood or marriage

The law requires you to show that your current or ex-partner:

- Threatened to, attempted to or actually physically abused you OR
- Sexually abused you OR
- Stalked or cyberstalked you

Other types of abuse may also qualify you for a protection order.

If you are under 18 years old you may be able to file for a protection order on your own behalf. Rhode Island law does not say at what age you may file for a protection order on your own behalf, who may file for you if you are unable to file on your own behalf or whether the court has to notify your parent/guardian if you receive a protection order.

This is the law in your state only. The law is different in every state.

What other laws do you need to know about?

All teens can consent to:

- Testing and treatment for HIV and sexually transmitted infections
- Medical care for their child(ren)

If you are a minor, you must have your parent's consent to have an abortion or put your child up for adoption.

What are schools doing about dating violence?

Rhode Island law requires schools to teach students in grades 7-12 about dating violence, have a policy to deal with dating violence at school and train teachers about dating violence.

How can Rhode Island improve its response to teen dating violence?

- State the age at which a minor may file for a protection order without parental involvement.
- Allow courts to issue protection orders to persons who have been harassed by a dating partner.
- Allow all minors to access health services without parental involvement.

Empowering Youth to End Domestic Violence

If you or someone you know is experiencing abuse in their relationship go to www.thesafespace.org